

CONTENTS

- 11 Introduction
- 13 Critical fortune
- 13 The gigantic contrast between father and son
 - 16 More of a genius than his father
 - 20 The new Daedalus
 - 28 The learned scholar in art
 - 31 Precursor of the art of the Renaissance
 - 35 Historical curiosities
 - 36 "If Nicola's Mary really resembled a Juno and his Christ a Hercules, what would have been new in that?"
 - 39 "From the pulpit of Siena the word of the new art is proclaimed"
 - 41 The pulpit of Siena – A work by Giovanni?
- 49 Research perspectives
- 49 The dialogue with the masters of antiquity
 - 68 Aspects of social history
 - 72 Iconography
- 83 The study of social history
- 83 Documents concerning the pulpit of Siena
 - 85 The payments
 - 86 Rhythms of work
 - 88 The total earnings of Nicola and Giovanni Pisano
 - 92 Giovanni as "caput magistrorum" of the Opera del Duomo of Pisa
 - 97 Giovanni attempts to equal his father's work rhythm
 - 100 Giovanni renounces a more comfortable dwelling

 - 105 Documents concerning Giovanni Pisano's activity as "caput magistrorum" of the Opera del Duomo of Pisa
 - Documentary appendix*
- 119 The artist as iconographer
- 119 Foreword
 - 120 Micro-iconography
 - 175 Artes liberales
 - 213 Testimonia ex prophetis et gentibus
 - 236 Bestiarium
 - 264 Vide lignum viride
 - 273 Hercules
 - 304 "Uno polpito alto e mangnio"
- 347 The dialogue
- 347 Foreword
 - 347 Nicola and Giovanni Pisano
 - 355 Arnolfo di Cambio
 - 363 "Gothic counterrevolution?"
 - 375 The reception of the antique in thirteenth-century aesthetics
 - 390 Art criticism 'with brush and chisel': how painters, sculptors and goldsmiths in the thirteenth and fourteenth century received the art of Nicola and Giovanni Pisano
- 455 Bibliography